ABSTRACT

Simple network management protocol or SNMP is encapsulated into HTTP traffic. The HTTP traffic is in a form that allows said to pass through a firewall. At one end, and SNMP request is encapsulated and sent to a remote computer. The remote computer de-encapsulates the request and response to the SNMP request. The SNMP response is encapsulated as an HTTP response, and sent to the management station which interprets the results.

DOCKET ALARM